

Disciplinary and Other NASD Actions

REPORTED FOR DECEMBER

NASD® has taken disciplinary actions against the following firms and individuals for violations of NASD rules; federal securities laws, rules, and regulations; and the rules of the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board (MSRB). The information relating to matters contained in this Notice is current as of the end of November 2005.

Firm Expelled, Individual Sanctioned

Dupont Securities Group, Inc. (CRD #42305, New York, New York) and David Wayne Parsons (CRD #2963654, Associated Person, Baldwin, New York). The firm was expelled from NASD membership, and Parsons was barred from association with any NASD member in any capacity. The sanctions were based on findings that the firm and Parsons actively participated in the unlawful sales of unregistered securities to public customers. The findings also stated that Parsons reviewed and approved a fraudulent press release designed to artificially increase the price of a stock. (NASD Case #CAF20040068)

Firm Fined, Individuals Sanctioned

C.E. Unterberg, Towbin, LLC. (CRD # 24790, New York, New York), Andrew Arno (CRD #1021807, Registered Principal, New York, New York) and James Thomas Whipple (CRD #1417979, Registered Principal, Red Bank, New Jersey) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $62,500, of which $10,000 was jointly and severally with Arno, and $10,000 was jointly and severally with Whipple. Arno was censured and Whipple was suspended from association with any NASD member in any capacity for 15 business days. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the respondents consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that the firm failed to immediately display customer limit orders in NASDAQ securities in its public quotation, when each such order was at a price that would have improved the firm's bid or offer in each such security; or when the order was priced equal to the firm's bid or offer and the national best bid or offer for each such security, and the size of the order represented more than a de minimis change in relation to the size associated with the firm's bid or offer in each such security. The findings stated that the firm transmitted reports that contained inaccurate, incomplete or improperly formatted data to the Order Audit Trail System (OATS). The findings also stated that the firm allowed Whipple to function as a principal in supervising the firm's sales personnel, and function as the firm's head trader, which gave him direct supervisory responsibility for the execution of equity transactions without first registering as a general securities principal, limited principal-general securities sales supervisor and/or as a limited representative-equity trader with NASD. The findings further stated that Arno allowed Whipple to function as a principal without the appropriate registration in that he failed to reasonably and properly supervise Whipple's activities, which would have allowed him to detect and prevent violations of NASD Membership and Registration Rules 1021 and 1031.

Whipple's suspension began November 21, 2005, and concluded at the close of business on December 12, 2005. (NASD Case #2005000137001)

Firms Fined

AFSG Securities Corporation (CRD #18374, Cedar Rapids, Iowa) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $110,000. The firm also agreed to restitution in the amount of $119 plus interest. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it failed to execute orders promptly, failed to use reasonable diligence to ascertain the best inter-dealer market and failed to buy or sell in such a market so that the resultant price was as favorable as possible under prevailing market conditions, and failed to fully execute market orders. The findings also stated that the firm failed to report the correct symbol indicating whether the firm executed transactions in eligible securities in a principal or agency capacity to ACT. NASD found that the firm made a report on its routing of non-directed orders available that included incomplete information regarding venues to which orders were routed, hence failing to disclose the identity of all venues to which the largest number of total non-directed orders were routed, and the firm identified those venues as "unspecified route venue." NASD also found that the firm's supervisory system did not provide for supervision reasonably designed to achieve compliance with respect to the applicable securities laws and regulations, and NASD rules concerning locked and crossed markets, ACT trade reporting, ACT reporting of short sale indicators and publishing order routing statistics. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it failed to immediately display customer limit orders in NASDAQ securities in its public quotation, when each such order was at a price that would have improved the firm's bid or offer in each such security; or when the order was priced equal to the firm's bid or offer and the national best bid or offer for each such security, and the size of the order represented more than a de minimis change in relation to the size associated with the firm's bid or offer in each such security.

The findings stated that the firm failed to submit required information to OATS and transmitted reports to OATS that contained inaccurate, incomplete or improperly formatted data. The findings also stated that the firm failed to provide its customers with written notification disclosing its correct capacity in certain transactions, and the commission charged in another transaction. The findings also stated that the firm made a report on covered orders available that it received for execution in national market system securities that included incorrect information as to average realized spread and at-the-quote average time. NASD determined that the firm failed to show the correct terms, conditions and times on the memorandums of brokerage orders. The findings stated that the firm failed to report the correct execution time for late last sale reports of transactions in NASDAQ securities through ACT. The findings also stated that the firm designated last sale reports of transactions in NASDAQ securities executed during normal market hours through ACT as ".T." The findings further stated that the firm failed to show the terms and conditions, as well as the correct time of entry, on brokerage order memoranda. In addition, NASD found that the firm effected short sale transactions for the firm's proprietary account and failed to make/annotate an affirmative determination that the firm could borrow the securities or otherwise provide for their delivery by the settlement date. The findings also stated that the firm failed to report the correct symbol indicating whether certain transactions in eligible securities were buys, sells, short sales, exempt short sales or crosses to ACT. NASD also found that the firm failed to report the correct symbol indicating whether the firm executed transactions in eligible securities in a principal or agency capacity to ACT. The findings stated that the firm incorrectly reported transactions with a ".W" modifier to ACT. The findings further stated that the firm failed to submit, for the offsetting, "riskless" portion of "riskless" principal transactions in NASDAQ National Market (NNM) and OTC equity securities, either a clearing-only report with the capacity indicator of "riskless principal," or a non-tape, non-clearing report with a capacity indicator of "riskless principal." NASD also determined that the firm failed to make a profit-sharing disclosure for internalized order flow in its report on its routing of non-directed orders in covered securities publicly available. Without admitting or denying the allegations, Chambers consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that he, directly or indirectly, by the use of means or instrumentalities of interstate commerce or the mails, employed artifices, devices or schemes to defraud; made untrue statements of material facts or omitted to state material facts necessary in order to make the statements, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading; engaged in acts, practices or courses of business that operated or would operate as a fraud or deceit, and/or effected transactions in, or induced the purchase or sale of, securities by means of manipulative, deceptive or other fraudulent devices or contrivances. NASD found that Chambers induced public customers to submit $180,600 for investing purposes to his company or its agent and, without their knowledge, authorization or consent, he misused and/or converted the customers' funds for his own use and benefit. The findings also stated that Chambers recommended securities transactions to public customers without reasonable grounds to believe the investments were suitable for them in light of their financial situations, investment objectives, needs and the risks associated with the investments. In light of El Assad's financial status, no monetary sanction was imposed. Without admitting or denying the allegations, El Assad consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that he knowingly and intentionally entered priced limit orders to buy or sell a small number of shares of a NASDAQ security into an ECN at prices that he knew would improve the NBBO for that security. The findings stated that, after entering orders into the ECN that improved the NBBO, El Assad knowingly and intentionally entered larger orders to sell (buy) shares of the security in his trading account because he knew and intended that these orders would be routed to Small Order Execution System (SOES) market makers that were programmed to buy or sell, and then bought and sold the security on an automated basis at prices equal to the NBBO. The findings also stated that, immediately after he received the SOES executions of the orders, El Assad intentionally and knowingly cancelled some of the priced limit orders that he had entered to improve the NBBO, thereby obtaining a financial benefit. NASD found that he caused limit orders to be published or circulated at prices that affected the NBBO and became quotations for the security, without believing that those quotations represented bona fide bids or offers for the security.

El Assad's suspension began November 21, 2005, and will conclude May 20, 2006. (NASD Case #20042000018-06)

Without admitting or denying the allegations, Feltz consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of finding that he, on behalf of his member firm, obtained a subordinated loan agreement for $5 million, but then entered into a side agreement with the lender that contradicted the terms of the secured demand note. NASD found that the side agreement states that Feltz, on behalf of the firm, would not attempt to pledge, hypothecate or encumber the collateral for the note and that, in furtherance of the side agreement, a limited power of attorney was signed giving the lender control of a bank account containing the funds used for collateral. NASD found that Feltz, on behalf of the firm, filed the required documents with NASD to get approval of the $5 million subordinated loan for net capital purposes without disclosing the side agreement and power of attorney to NASD. If the filing had not been misleading, NASD would not have approved the demand note. As a result, the firm was allowed to conduct business for over a year until NASD learned of the side agreement and power of attorney. When NASD's approval was rescinded, the firm was forced to cease doing business for lack of adequate net capital.

Feltz's suspension began November 21, 2005, and will conclude at the close of business February 20, 2006. (NASD Case #E102004085603)

NASDAQ Best Bid and Offer (QBBO), and received executions for these orders. NASD found that McNulty knew that the relevant market maker utilized an automated quoting system that was designed to keep a consistent spread between its bid and offer, and that the type of order he was placing would result in the market participant's offer (bid) adjusting to a more favorable QBBO. NASD further found that McNulty then entered orders for at least 100 shares through his firm's proprietary trading account into NASDAQ's SuperMontage on the opposite side of the market and received executions at the new QBBO from the same market maker that executed McNulty's share order. The findings stated that by knowingly and intentionally engaging in this course of conduct, McNulty, on behalf of his customers, was able to buy (sell) shares of the subject securities at prices that were lower (higher), than would otherwise have been obtained. Decision Issued

The following decision has been issued by the Office of Hearing Officers and has been appealed to or called for review by the NAC as of October 7, 2005. The findings and sanctions imposed in the decision may be increased, decreased, modified or reversed by the NAC. An initial decision whose time for appeal has not yet expired will be reported in the next Notice to Members.

Charles Albert DaCruz (CRD #2444684, Registered Principal, Williston Park, New York) and Thomas John Linda (CRD #2404854, Registered Representative, Atlanta, Georgia). DaCruz was fined $67,000, suspended from association with any NASD member in any capacity for one year and required to requalify by examination as a registered representative within 60 days of the termination of his suspension. Linda was fined $200,000, suspended from association with any NASD member in any capacity for one year and required to requalify by examination as a registered representative within 60 days of the termination of his suspension. The fines must be paid before the respondents reassociate with any NASD member following the suspension or before requesting relief from any statutory disqualification. The sanctions were based on findings that the respondents, while using the means and instrumentalities of interstate commerce to offer securities for sale, neglected to state material facts necessary in order to make the statements made in connection with such offers, in light of the circumstances in which they were made, not misleading. The findings also stated that the respondents, while using the means and instrumentalities of interstate commerce to offer securities for sale, made material misrepresentation in the form of price predictions to induce public customers to make purchases.

This decision has been appealed to the NAC, and the sanctions are not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (NASD Case #C3A20040001/E3A20030219)

NASD Fines Ameriprise Financial Services $12.3 Million for Directed Brokerage Violations

NASD announced that it has fined Ameriprise Financial Services, Inc. of Minneapolis, MN, $12.3 million in connection with its receipt of directed brokerage in return for providing preferential treatment to certain mutual fund companies. The conduct at issue occurred when the firm was known as American Express Financial Advisors. The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has also sanctioned the firm for related conduct.

The action involves violations of NASD's Anti-Reciprocal Rule, which prohibits firms from favoring the sale of shares of particular mutual funds on the basis of brokerage commissions received by the firm. Among other things, the rule prohibits a firm from recommending funds or establishing preferred lists of funds in exchange for receipt of directed brokerage.

"This case demonstrates that NASD will remain vigilant in its efforts to eliminate conflicts of interest in the sale of mutual funds," said Barry Goldsmith, NASD Executive Vice President and Head of Enforcement. "NASD's Anti-Reciprocal Rule is an important regulatory tool that is designed to ensure that firms recommend mutual funds on their merits and not because of the receipt of brokerage commissions, which are assets of the mutual fund shareholders and should not be used for marketing purposes."

NASD found that from January 2001 through December 2003, Ameriprise operated two shelf space (or revenue sharing) programs in which participating mutual fund companies paid a fee in return for preferential treatment by Ameriprise. That treatment included enhanced access to Ameriprise's sales force, including participation in conferences and meetings, distribution and display of marketing materials at Ameriprise branches, and in-office visits with Ameriprise registered representatives—all designed to increase sales of those mutual funds.

In addition, Ameriprise promoted the funds on its internal website, identifying the mutual funds as "Preferred Providers," and posted sales literature for the funds as well as information about the funds and their fund managers. Ameriprise also charged its advisors reduced sales ticket charges for the sale of Preferred Provider funds. None of these benefits were available to non-participating mutual funds. While Ameriprise sold funds offered by approximately 32 fund companies during the period at issue, 24 were Preferred Providers.

The mutual fund complexes that participated in these programs paid extra fees for the preferential treatment they received. Seven of the 24 fund complexes paid their fees for participating in the programs by directing approximately $41 million in mutual fund portfolio brokerage commissions to Ameriprise. The funds accomplished this by directing portfolio trades to the trading desks of clearing firms designated by Ameriprise, and the clearing firms then remitted a portion of the trading commissions—generally 75 to 86 percent—to Ameriprise, the designated "introducing broker." The commissions paid under these arrangements were sufficiently large to pay for the preferential treatment and other benefits received by the funds as well as the costs of trade execution. This use of directed brokerage allowed the fund complexes to use assets of the mutual funds instead of their own money to meet their revenue sharing obligations. The remaining fund complexes paid their fees for participating in the Preferred Provider program in cash to Ameriprise.

NASD acknowledges the assistance of the Midwest Regional Office of the SEC in investigating this matter.

In settling with NASD, Ameriprise neither admitted nor denied the allegations, but consented to the entry of NASD's findings.

NASD has brought 29 previous actions for similar violations.

NASD Fines Clearing Firm, Two Other Firms More Than $300,000 For Facilitating Violations of Net Capital Rule

Violations Include Concealing Loss On Unsecured Customer Debt; Firms' Senior Officers Also Fined, Suspended

NASD announced that it has fined two firms, First Avantus Securities, Inc. (now known as Riverstone Wealth Management, Inc.) of Austin, TX, and National Securities Corporation of Seattle, WA, as well as their clearing firm, First Clearing Corporation of Glen Allen, VA, for engaging in conduct that circumvented and/or assisted in circumventing the net capital rule. Specifically, First Clearing entered into agreements with the two introducing firms that resulted in those firms failing to appropriately book liabilities, thereby creating net capital deficiencies. First Clearing also provided clearing and execution services to First Avantus and National Securities while those firms were in violation of the net capital rule.

First Avantus was fined $100,000. Three of its principals were fined a total of $75,000 and suspended from serving in principal capacities for periods ranging from 60 days to four months. First Clearing was fined $110,000, of which $17,500 was assessed jointly and severally against its president. National Securities and its president were jointly and severally fined $30,000 for net capital violations. National was fined an additional $55,000 for supervisory and books and records violations, as well as for violations of the membership application rules for failing to seek approval of a material change in its business.

"Net capital requirements are designed to help ensure the financial stability of broker-dealer firms, and accurate financial reporting is a cornerstone of the process," said Barry Goldsmith, NASD Executive Vice President and Head of Enforcement. "The transactions that these firms engaged in hid liabilities and resulted in making inaccurate financial information available to regulatory authorities."

First Avantus entered into an agreement with First Clearing that had the effect of concealing certain liabilities. National Securities entered into an agreement with First Clearing that subsequently created a net capital deficiency for National Securities. The duration and extent of these violations ranged up to 22 months, with net capital deficiencies ranging from $119,000 to $1.452 million.

In the matter involving First Avantus and First Clearing, a dispute arose between the two firms in October 2001 over responsibility for a failed customer check in the amount of $2.8 million. To resolve arbitration proceedings arising from this dispute, First Avantus and First Clearing entered into a settlement agreement, the terms of which required First Clearing to assume responsibility for the customer's unsecured debit balance, which was otherwise a liability of First Avantus. In return, First Avantus agreed to increase its monthly clearing fees due to First Clearing by $500,000 over five years. Neither First Clearing nor First Avantus treated the $500,000 payment as a liability of First Avantus. Nevertheless, First Avantus continued to conduct a securities business, thus violating the net capital rule, and First Clearing continued to provide clearing and execution services for First Avantus. In a separate instance, beginning in March 2002, First Avantus failed to treat a customer's unsecured debit balance, which had risen to almost $206,000, as a firm liability for a period of at least five months. These liabilities resulted in net capital deficiencies during the relevant periods of $222,000 to $557,000.

In the matter involving National Securities, First Clearing advanced a loan to National Securities' parent, Olympia Cascade, in August 2001. In connection with the loan, Olympia Cascade and National Securities entered into a security agreement pledging National Securities' assets as collateral for the loan. As a result of that security agreement, the value of National Securities' assets should have been deducted from its net capital to the extent of any liability owed by National Securities' parent under the terms of the promissory note. National Securities failed to do so, resulting in capital deficiencies between $119,000 to $1.452 million, over a 22-month period.

In addition to the three firms, NASD took action against the following individuals in connection with the net capital violations. Each of the individuals played a role with regard to the transactions that created the net capital violations.

- David Lawrence Williams of Richmond, VA, formerly the President of First Clearing. Williams was censured and fined $17,500, jointly and severally with First Clearing.
- Steven A. Rothstein of Wilmette, IL, formerly Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of National Securities. Rothstein was censured and fined $30,000, jointly and severally with National Securities.
- Brian Edward Smith of Austin, TX, President of First Avantus. Smith was fined $25,000, jointly and severally with First Avantus. In addition, Smith was suspended from serving in any principal capacity for sixty days.
- Bryan Torrey Forman of Tyler, TX, formerly Chief Executive Officer of First Avantus. Forman was fined $25,000 and suspended from serving in any principal capacity for four months.
- Kyle Timothy Holland of Austin, TX, formerly the Chief Financial Officer of First Avantus. Holland was fined $25,000 and suspended in all capacities for one month and in any principal capacity for three months for violations that included the net capital issues noted above.

In settling this matter with NASD, the parties neither admitted nor denied the charges, but consented to the entry of NASD's findings.

NASD Orders Chase Investment Services to Pay More Than $290,000 For Permitting Hedge Fund to Market Time Mutual Fund Shares

Firm to Pay $150,000 Fine and Restitution to Funds Totaling $140,262

NASD announced that it has ordered Chase Investment Services of Chicago, IL, to pay more than $290,000 for failing to have an adequate supervisory system and controls in place to prevent deceptive market timing by one of its hedge fund clients. The firm was fined $150,000 and ordered to pay a total of $140,262 to the affected mutual funds.

“Deceptive market timing—by hedge funds or any other market participant—is both unfair and harmful to other mutual fund shareholders,” said Barry Goldsmith, NASD Executive Vice President and Head of Enforcement. “In this case, Chase’s failure to have systems and controls in place to enforce trading limits set by the mutual funds themselves resulted in a hedge fund gaining an impermissible advantage over other fund shareholders.”

NASD found that Chase failed to maintain, update and enforce effective internal policies, systems and procedures with respect to preventing deceptive mutual fund market timing activity by one of its customers, which operated a hedge fund. From at least February 2002 through August 2003, Chase received notice of trading restrictions or “block letters” from 19 mutual funds—with each fund restricting the hedge fund customer from effecting future transactions within the fund. Chase did not have adequate supervisory systems or controls designed to ensure that the block letters would be enforced.

Further, Chase failed to conduct any follow-up and review of the hedge fund customer’s accounts to ensure that it enforced the terms of the block letters it received and/or detected and prevented the hedge fund’s attempts to circumvent the block letter restrictions. The firm permitted the hedge fund customer to evade fund restrictions by establishing new accounts through which it continued to trade in funds that had previously issued block letters. As a result, in 81 instances, Chase failed to prevent its customer from effecting further trades in contravention of the restrictions imposed by the funds. The customer earned profits in 13 of those funds totaling $140,262.

In resolving this action, Chase has agreed to pay restitution totaling $140,262 to various mutual funds within families of funds including, but not limited to, American Funds, Vanguard Funds and TIAA-CREF. Chase settled the action without admitting or denying the allegations, but consented to the entry of NASD’s findings.
